Director, International Business Communications

#LI-Hybrid

Location: Basel, Switzerland

Shape how a global business connects, engages, and inspires—this is your opportunity to make a meaningful impact at scale. As Director, International Business Communications, you will play a pivotal role in driving strategic communications across a diverse and fast-evolving International Business Unit, reaching over 220 million patients worldwide. Working at the heart of leadership decision-making, you will translate complex business priorities into compelling narratives, lead high-impact campaigns, and harness innovative approaches including artificial intelligence to elevate engagement, alignment, and performance across markets. This is a unique opportunity to partner closely with senior leaders, influence transformation, and help bring to life the International ambition through powerful storytelling and communication strategies.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Develop and deliver strategic communications that align teams and strengthen a unified International business narrative
- Lead integrated communication campaigns supporting business priorities, transformation initiatives, and performance goals
- Translate complex strategies into clear, compelling narratives, editorial plans, and scalable content across markets
- Drive high-impact content programs, including International Ambition and Artificial Intelligence strategy initiatives
- Lead communications for major business moments and events, including flagship International engagements
- Partner with regional communication teams to co-create assets, share best practices, and enable local adaptation
- Collaborate with senior leaders to align executive, leadership, and business communications around shared priorities
- Use insights, analytics, and industry trends to optimize communication strategies and measure engagement impact

Essential Requirements

- Degree required; advanced degree preferred (Public Policy, International Relations, Political Science, Communications, or related field)
- Extensive experience in business or corporate communications, employee engagement, or change communications
- Proven expertise developing and delivering international communication strategies across multiple markets
- Strong experience partnering with senior executives, providing strategic counsel in complex, matrix organizations
- Demonstrated ability to translate business strategy into compelling narratives and high-impact content
- Expertise in change communications, employee engagement, and integrated communication campaigns
- Strong analytical mindset with ability to use insights and data to optimize communication strategies
- High level of business acumen, influencing skills, and ability to navigate complexity at senior levels
