Сводка

The Medical Science Liaison (MSL) serves as a scientific ambassador for Novartis, leading high-quality, peer-to-peer scientific engagement with Healthcare Professionals and Medical Experts. The role supports evidence-based clinical decision making, contributes to medical strategy through insight generation, and strengthens Novartis' scientific leadership by facilitating scientific exchange, clinical research support, and medical education activities.

About the Role

About the Role

As a Medical Science Liaison, you will build trusted scientific partnerships with Medical Experts, providing unbiased medical and scientific information while collecting valuable insights that help shape medical strategy. You will collaborate closely with cross-functional colleagues to advance patient care, support clinical research, and ensure the highest standards of scientific engagement and compliance.

Key Responsibilities

- Develop and execute Medical Expert engagement plans aligned with country and therapeutic area strategy.
- Identify, map, and prioritize Medical Experts and key accounts, ensuring appropriate scientific engagement based on medical needs and evidence gaps.
- Conduct high-quality, compliant, peer-to-peer scientific exchange with Healthcare Professionals and Medical Experts.
- Respond to unsolicited medical and scientific requests for information in a timely and balanced manner.
- Share and discuss emerging clinical data, scientific publications, and disease area insights.
- Support Novartis-sponsored clinical research activities by facilitating site identification, study feasibility, and investigator engagement in collaboration with Clinical Operations.
- Facilitate the Investigator Initiated Trial (IIT) process upon investigator request.
- Contribute to medical education initiatives, scientific meetings, symposia, and educational events aligned with medical strategy.
- Gather, synthesize, and communicate actionable external insights to inform medical and cross-functional decision making.
- Serve as a scientific resource for internal stakeholders, providing clinical context and medical expertise.
- Report technical complaints, adverse events, and special case scenarios related to Novartis products within required timelines.
- Ensure all activities are conducted in accordance with Novartis policies, ethical standards, and regulatory requirements.
- Support distribution of marketing samples where applicable.

Essential Requirements

- Advanced scientific degree (MD, PharmD, PhD, MSc in Life Sciences, or equivalent).
- Experience in Medical Affairs, clinical research, healthcare, or other scientific roles; field medical experience is preferred.
- Strong capability to engage in scientific, evidence-based dialogue with Healthcare Professionals and Medical Experts.
- Ability to interpret and communicate complex clinical and scientific data.
- Understanding of clinical research, evidence generation, and pharmaceutical industry regulations.
- Strong stakeholder management and collaboration skills within a matrix environment.
- Excellent communication and presentation skills.
- High level of integrity, ethical judgement, and commitment to patient outcomes.
- Fluent in English and local language, as applicable.

Key Performance Indicators

- Achievement of annual medical engagement and scientific activity objectives.
- Quality, relevance, and impact of Medical Expert engagements.
- Generation and communication of actionable medical insights.
- Excellence in clinical research and study support activities.
- Timely and accurate reporting and documentation.
- Compliance with Ethics, Risk & Compliance (ERC) standards, governance requirements, and Novartis policies.
